

UK GDPR

Data Protection Policy

Following the positive UK EU Adequacy decision, the UK's data protection system continues to be based on the same rules that were applicable when the UK was a Member State of the EU. The UK has fully incorporated the principles, rights and obligations of the GDPR and the Law Enforcement Directive into its post-Brexit legal system.

This decision will automatically expire on 28 June 2025. After that period, the adequacy findings might be renewed, if the UK continues to ensure an adequate level of data protection. During these four years, the Commission will continue to monitor the legal situation in the UK and could intervene at any point. In this case, this policy may be revoked at short notice.

This policy applies to all employees of 360GN and its associated companies. UK GDPR is the highest standard for data processing and protection which we must always adhere to.

1 Introduction

This Data Protection Policy (the “Policy”) sets out the principles and obligations of 360Globalnet Ltd, a company registered in England and Wales, company registration number 07127114, registered office Bourne House, 475 Godstone Road, Whyteleafe, Surrey, CR3 0BL (the “Company”) regarding data protection and the rights of clients, business contacts and employees (“data subjects”) in respect of their personal data under the UK General Data Protection Regulation (“UK GDPR”).

The UK GDPR defines “personal data” as any information relating to an identified or identifiable natural person (a “data subject”); an identifiable natural person is one who can be identified, directly or indirectly, in particular by reference to:

- an identifier such as a name, an identification number, location data, an online identifier, or to
- a combination of factors specific to the physical, physiological, genetic, mental, economic, cultural, or social identity of that natural person.

A data subject’s name may have to be combined with other data to identify that individual.

An example: there are two individuals living at the same address, both named Arthur Peter Talbot, who are father – known as Peter Talbot, and son – known as Arthur Talbot. They may be easy to identify when you meet them in person, but in data, it is necessary to look at, and combine their names with, other data to tell which is which, such as the date of birth, place of work or telephone number.

It should also be noted that, although you may not know the name of an individual it does not mean you cannot identify them; many people do not know the names of their neighbours but can still identify them.

This Policy sets the Company’s obligations regarding the collection, processing, transfer, storage, and disposal of personal data. The procedures and principles set out herein must be followed at all times by the Company, its employees, agents, contractors, or other parties working on behalf of the Company.

The Company is committed not only to the letter of the law, but also to the spirit of the law and places high importance on the correct, lawful, and fair handling of all personal data, respecting the legal rights, privacy, and trust of all individuals with whom it deals.

2 The Data Protection Principles

This Policy aims to ensure compliance with the UK GDPR. The UK GDPR sets out the following principles with which any party handling personal data must comply. All personal data must be:

- 2.1 Processed lawfully, fairly, and in a transparent manner in relation to the data subject.
- 2.2 Collected for specified, explicit, and legitimate purposes and not further processed in a manner that is incompatible with those purposes. Further processing for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes shall not be considered to be incompatible with the initial purposes.
- 2.3 Adequate, relevant, and limited to what is necessary in relation to the purposes for which it is processed.
- 2.4 Accurate and, where necessary, kept up to date. Every reasonable step must be taken to ensure that personal data that is inaccurate, having regard to the purposes for which it is processed, is erased, or rectified without delay.

- 2.5 Kept in a form which permits identification of data subjects for no longer than is necessary for the purposes for which the personal data is processed. Personal data may be stored for longer periods insofar as the personal data will be processed solely for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes, or statistical purposes, subject to implementation of the appropriate technical and organisational measures required by the UK GDPR in order to safeguard the rights and freedoms of the data subject.
- 2.6 Processed in a manner that ensures appropriate security of the personal data, including protection against unauthorised or unlawful processing and against accidental loss, destruction, or damage, using appropriate technical or organisational measures.

3 The Rights of Data Subjects

The UK GDPR sets out the following rights applicable to data subjects (please refer to the parts of this policy indicated for further details):

- 3.1 The right to be informed (Part 12).
- 3.2 The right of access (Part 13);

- 3.4 The right to erasure (also known as the 'right to be forgotten') (Part 15);
- 3.5 The right to restrict processing (Part 16);
- 3.6 The right to data portability (Part 17);
- 3.7 The right to object (Part 18); and
- 3.8 Rights with respect to automated decision-making (Parts 19 and 20).

4 Lawful, Fair, and Transparent Data Processing

- 4.1 The UK GDPR seeks to ensure that personal data is processed lawfully, fairly, and transparently, without adversely affecting the rights of the data subject. The UK GDPR states that processing of personal data shall be lawful if at least one of the following applies:
 - 4.1.1 The data subject has given consent to the processing of their personal data for one or more specific purposes;
 - 4.1.2 The processing is necessary for the performance of a contract to which the data subject is a party, or in order to take steps at the request of the data subject prior to entering into a contract with them;
 - 4.1.3 The processing is necessary for compliance with a legal obligation to which the data controller is subject;
 - 4.1.4 The processing is necessary to protect the vital interests of the data subject or of another natural person;
 - 4.1.5 The processing is necessary for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in the data controller; or
 - 4.1.6 The processing is necessary for the purposes of the legitimate interests pursued by the data controller or by a third party, except where such interests are overridden by the fundamental rights and freedoms of the data subject which require protection of personal data, in particular where the data subject is a child.
- 4.2 If the personal data in question is "special category data" - also known as "sensitive personal data” (for example, data concerning the data subject’s race, ethnicity, politics, religion, trade union membership, genetics, biometrics (if used for ID purposes), health, sex life, or sexual orientation), at least one of the following conditions must be met:

- 4.2.1 The data subject has given their explicit consent to the processing of such data for one or more specified purposes (unless the data protection legislation (as defined in Data Protection Act 2018, Part 1, Section 3 (9)) prohibits them from doing so);
- 4.2.2 The processing is necessary for the purpose of carrying out the obligations and exercising specific rights of the data controller or of the data subject in the field of employment, social security, and social protection law (insofar as it is authorised by the data protection legislation, which provides for appropriate safeguards for the fundamental rights and interests of the data subject);
- 4.2.3 The processing is necessary to protect the vital interests of the data subject or of another natural person where the data subject is physically or legally incapable of giving consent;
- 4.2.4 The data controller is a foundation, association, or other non-profit body with a political, philosophical, religious, or trade union aim, and the processing is carried out in the course of its legitimate activities, provided that the processing relates solely to the members or former members of that body or to persons who have regular contact with it in connection with its purposes and that the personal data is not disclosed outside the body without the consent of the data subjects;
- 4.2.5 The processing relates to personal data which is clearly made public by the data subject;
- 4.2.6 The processing is necessary for the conduct of legal claims or whenever courts are acting in their judicial capacity;
- 4.2.7 The processing is necessary for substantial public interest reasons, on the basis of the data protection legislation, which shall be proportionate to the aim pursued, shall respect the essence of the right to data protection, and shall provide for suitable and specific measures to safeguard the fundamental rights and interests of the data subject;
- 4.2.8 The processing is necessary for the purposes of preventative or occupational medicine, for the assessment of the working capacity of an employee, for medical diagnosis, for the provision of health or social care or treatment, or the management of health or social care systems or services on the basis of Data Protection Act 2018 Chapter 2, 10(1)(c) or pursuant to a contract with a health professional, subject to the conditions and safeguards referred to in Article 9(3) of the UK GDPR;
- 4.2.9 The processing is necessary for public interest reasons in the area of public health, for example, protecting against serious cross-border threats to health or ensuring high standards of quality and safety of health care and of medicinal products or medical devices, on the basis the data protection legislation which provides for suitable and specific measures to safeguard the rights and freedoms of the data subject (in particular, professional secrecy); or
- 4.2.10 The processing is necessary for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes, or statistical purposes in accordance with Data Protection Act 2018 Chapter 2, 10(1)(e) which shall be proportionate to the aim pursued, respect the essence of the right to data protection, and provide for suitable and specific measures to safeguard the fundamental rights and the interests of the data subject.

- 18.4 Where a data subject objects to the Company processing their personal data for scientific and/or historical research and statistics purposes, the data subject must, under the UK GDPR, "demonstrate grounds relating to his or her particular situation". The Company is not required to comply if the research is necessary for the performance of a task carried out for reasons of public interest.

28 Transferring Personal Data to a Country Outside the EEA

- 28.1 From the end of the Brexit transition period, the company can continue to make transfers of data from the UK to the EEA under UK adequacy regulations. Transfers from the UK to other countries can continue under existing arrangements. The UK government has the power to make its own 'adequacy decisions' in relation to third countries and international organisations. In the UK regime these are now known as 'adequacy regulations.'
- 28.2 The Company may from time-to-time transfer ('transfer' includes making available remotely) personal data to countries outside of the EEA and outside the protection of the UK GDPR. This is called a 'restricted transfer'.

28.3 The transfer of personal data to a country outside of the EEA shall take place only if one or more of the following applies:

28.3.1 The transfer is to a country, territory, or one or more specific sectors in that country (or an international organisation), that the European Commission or UK has determined ensures an adequate level of protection for personal data;

28.3.2 The transfer is to a country (or international organisation) which provides appropriate safeguards in the form of a legally binding agreement between public authorities or bodies; binding corporate rules; standard data protection clauses adopted by the UK and European Commission; compliance with an approved code of conduct approved by a supervisory authority (e.g. the Information Commissioner's Office); certification under an approved certification mechanism (as provided for in the UK GDPR); contractual clauses agreed and authorised by the competent supervisory authority; or provisions inserted into administrative arrangements between public authorities or bodies authorised by the competent supervisory authority;

28.3.3 The transfer is made with the informed consent of the relevant data subject(s);

28.3.4 The transfer is necessary for the performance of a contract between the data subject and the Company (or for pre-contractual steps taken at the request of the data subject);

28.3.5 The transfer is necessary for important public interest reasons;

28.3.6 The transfer is necessary for the conduct of legal claims;

28.3.7 The transfer is necessary to protect the vital interests of the data subject or other individuals where the data subject is physically or legally unable to give their consent; or

28.3.8 The transfer is made from a register that, under UK or EU law, is intended to provide information to the public and which is open for access by the public in general or otherwise to those who are able to show a legitimate interest in accessing the register.

28.3.9 The final transfer that may be applied can only apply, if 360GN:

- are making a one-off restricted transfer in compelling legitimate interests;
- cannot rely on any of the other exceptions

It:

- should not be relied on lightly, never routinely and
- is only for truly exceptional circumstances.

For this exception (Exception 8 of Article 49 of the UK GDPR) to apply to a restricted transfer:

1. There must be no adequacy decision which applies.
2. 360GN are unable to use any of the other appropriate safeguards. Serious consideration must be given to this, even if it would involve significant investment.
3. None of the other exceptions apply. Again, serious consideration must be given to the other exceptions. It may be that explicit consent may be obtained with some effort or investment.
4. The transfer must not be repetitive – that is, it may happen more than once but not regularly.
5. The personal data must only relate to a limited number of individuals. There is no absolute threshold for this. The number of individuals involved should be part of the balancing exercise that must be undertaken.

6. The transfer must be necessary for the compelling legitimate interests. Please see the section in the policy on legitimate interests as a lawful basis for processing but bear in mind that this exception requires a higher standard, as it must be a compelling legitimate interest. The ICO give an example as a transfer of personal data to protect a company's IT systems from serious immediate harm.
7. On balance, 360GN's compelling legitimate interests outweigh the rights and freedoms of the individuals.
8. 360GN has made a full assessment of the circumstances surrounding the transfer and provided suitable safeguards to protect the personal data. Suitable safeguards might be strict confidentiality agreements, a requirement for data to be deleted soon after transfer, technical controls to prevent the use of the data for other purposes or sending pseudonymised or encrypted data. This must be recorded in full in the documentation of the processing activities.
9. 360GN have informed the ICO of the transfer. They will ask to see full details of all the steps 360GN has taken as set out above.
10. 360GN has informed the individual of the transfer and explained their compelling legitimate interest to them.

29 Data Breach Notification

- 29.1 All personal data breaches must be reported immediately to the Company's Data Protection Officer, using the 360GN UK GDPR Data Breach or Issue Report form template.
- 29.2 If a personal data breach occurs and that breach is likely to result in a risk to the rights and freedoms of data subjects (e.g. financial loss, breach of confidentiality, discrimination, reputational damage, or other significant social or economic damage), the Data Protection Officer must ensure that the Information Commissioner's Office is informed of the breach without delay, and in any event, within 72 hours after having become aware of it.
- 29.3 In the event that a personal data breach is likely to result in a high risk (that is, a higher risk than that described under Part 29.2) to the rights and freedoms of data subjects, the Data Protection Officer must ensure that all affected data subjects are informed of the breach directly and without undue delay.
- 29.4 Data breach notifications shall include the following information:
 - 29.4.1 The categories and approximate number of data subjects concerned;
 - 29.4.2 The categories and approximate number of personal data records concerned;
 - 29.4.3 The name and contact details of the Company's data protection officer (or other contact point where more information can be obtained);
 - 29.4.4 The likely consequences of the breach;
 - 29.5.5 Details of the measures taken, or proposed to be taken, by the Company to address the breach including, where appropriate, measures to mitigate its possible adverse effects.

30 Mutual Legal Assistance requests/Judicial Cooperation

Mutual Legal Assistance (MLA) is a method of cooperation between States for obtaining assistance in the investigation or prosecution of criminal offences and does not come under the UK GDPR. It is mentioned here for completeness of this policy. MLA is generally used for obtaining information that cannot be obtained on a law enforcement (police to police) to basis, particularly enquiries that require coercive means. Requests are made by a formal international Letter of Request (ILOR or LOR). In civil law jurisdictions these are also referred to as Commissions Rogatoires. This assistance is usually requested by courts or prosecutors and is therefore also referred to as 'judicial cooperation'. Any such requests must be immediately forwarded to the Data Protection Officer, where they will be assessed and dealt with.

MLA can also be used to obtain assistance in the investigation of the proceeds of crime and also in their freezing and confiscation. Proceeds of crime matters can be on a criminal (conviction) basis or a civil (non-conviction) basis.

Due to the increasingly global nature of crime, MLA is critical to criminal investigations and proceedings both in the UK and abroad. The UK is committed to assisting investigative, prosecuting and judicial authorities in combating international crime and is able to provide a wide range of MLA. MLA is also a vital tool in the pursuit of criminal finances including the recovery of the proceeds of crime that may have been moved and hidden assets overseas.

These guidelines are to ensure that requests for MLA received by the UK can be acceded to and executed quickly and efficiently.
